

The Talker

A children's story with motions

By David E. Thiele

Once upon a time there were some lefties and there were some righties. The lefties didn't get along with the righties and the righties didn't get along with the lefties. One day a man came who was the talker. He told the lefties that they needed to get along with the righties. And he told the righties that they needed to get along with the lefties. Some of the righties listened to the talker, and some of the lefties listened to the talker. The righties that became listeners, and the lefties that became listeners found out that the talker was also - the hugger.

But some of the righties that didn't want to hear the talker, grabbed the talker, and some of the lefties that didn't want to hear the talker, grabbed the talker. And they killed the talker that was also the hugger.

But what they didn't know was that the talker who was also the hugger was also - the life giver. And he came back to life. Then the righties that had become listeners and the lefties that had become listeners found out that the talker who was also the hugger who was also the life giver - was also the reacher. He reached out to the listeners and they reached out to him. And when the listeners reached out to the talker who was also the hugger who was also the life giver who was also the reacher, they were given forever life. Then the talker who was also the hugger who was also the life giver who was also the reacher. Told the listeners that had become life getters that they needed to become talkers and huggers and life sharers and reachers. Then the talker who was also the hugger who was also the life giver who was also the reacher, became the flyer and he flew back to the wonderful, beautiful place of the forever lifers.

Then the listeners that had become talkers and huggers and life sharers and reachers became flyers and flew to the wonderful, beautiful place of the forever lifers. But before they became flyers they told some righties and some lefties that they needed to listen to the talker who was also the hugger who was also the life giver who was also the reacher who was also the flyer. And you know what? Some of them listened!
